

Comments to tables 3.2

The yearly data on Salary and business income, Wages in state sector, bonuses and travel fees, Pensions and other transfer incomes, Total monetary income, Real income and Monetary income per capita have been corrected by the SCS and do not correspond to the sum of quarterly or monthly figures.

Wages and pensions registered in this table are "paid" wages (i.e. without wage arrears), which may differ from average wages shown in Table 3.1. "Other transfer incomes" include mainly stipends, social benefits and interest payments on savings accounts. In July 1995, a new element appeared in "other incomes", namely "sales of foreign currency". Since interest payments on hryvnia savings accounts were then around 10 m UAH per month, and other transfer incomes were quite low, it is possible that sales of foreign currency were already included in that category in previous months. Sales of foreign currencies are thought to be cash dollars exchanged by households in exchange points; they obviously do not represent income as such. On the other hand, monetary incomes probably underscore actual private incomes.
